Reconciliation Efforts Towards Slave Descendants
and all African Americans

“Gradually the mists of partial knowledge (will) clear away; but it will be many years yet before the North and South will thoroughly understand each other, either as to the past history of slavery or the present relations of the negro and white races. Meanwhile mutual forbearance may lead to increasing mutual affection and respect. “

William Greenleaf Elliot

Founder of Washington University, St. Louis, MO

We thank the Cherry Blossom Festival for co-sponsoring this event and a special thanks to Sally Rains, Nicholas Inman and Brian Jackson for their support and participation in planning.
